WHAT IS SPINAL CORD INJURY?

Spinal cord injury is life-changing, causing paralysis and loss of sensation below the level of damage to the spinal cord.

You might not be able to walk, or you might lose control of your bladder and bowel function. Some people might still be able to walk but experience other complications because of their injury.

If you have a higher-level injury, you may also have limited or no hand and arm function or rely on a ventilator to breathe.

A spinal cord injury can be hugely traumatic – for the person directly affected and their family.

But you're not alone...

Around 50,000 people are living with spinal cord injury in the UK

Every four hours, someone sustains a spinal cord injury
